Lawn Care

When driving through a neighbourhood, little catches the eye like a thick, lush, bright green lawn. The edges are crisp, sidewalks blown clean of any debris. It's the picture of horticultural health, mowed at optimal intervals, irrigated as necessary and thriving on a buffet of all the nutrients it requires.

I recommend March/April checkups for indications of stress to the grass, moss, insects and disease. If any problems are discovered, appropriate controls are put into place. A program for regular mowings, trimming and edging helps develop your lawn's root base and produces a thick green blade.

I take great pride in making your lawn the jewel on your street. Trimmings are removed after every mowing. Areas are swept and blown meticulously clean. Crisp edges separate the grass from sidewalks and gardening.

Regular fertilizer applications will keep your lawn fed year-long with carefully selected, quality nutrients. In the Greater Vancouver area, we get a lot of rain. Liming discourages the growth of moss by raising the pH of the lawn. Lime also strengthens the cell walls of the grass.

Depending on your maintenance plan, aeration may be done either once or twice a year. Aeration breaks up the compacted soil beneath the grass by extracting plugs of earth. Aeration combines well with overseeding. Overseeding involves the sowing of fresh seed over your existing lawn in order to increase thickness.

Power raking removes moss and thatch from the lawn. It can leave the lawn rather barren, if moss has built up for some time. Topdressing is a great solution for thin or patchy lawns. Topdressing involves the application of a thin layer of nutrient-rich topsoil. I rake it over the lawn with grass seed. Combined with fertilization, germination rates are very high because the seeds are in direct contact with soil and nutrients.

At the end of the season, your lawn is winterized. I look forward to putting together the ideal lawn and garden maintenance program for you.
